Foreword

THIS is a catalogue of the Medical Incunabula contained in the William Norton Bullard Loan Collection now deposited in the Boston Medical Library.

The Library is to be congratulated on having as one of its members a physician who comes from a noted literary family, many of whom are well known as enthusiastic collectors.

The special library here described is of unusual value because of the wise discrimination exercised by Dr. Bullard in the selection of books for his collection. There are examples of practically all the most notable medical books printed before 1500.

A study of the titles and the bibliographical information contained in the catalogue will, it is hoped, lead to a desire to know more about these early classics. Boston is indeed fortunate in having the opportunity presented to it to become acquainted with a side of cultural medicine hitherto but little appreciated.

JOHN W. FARLOW

Introduction

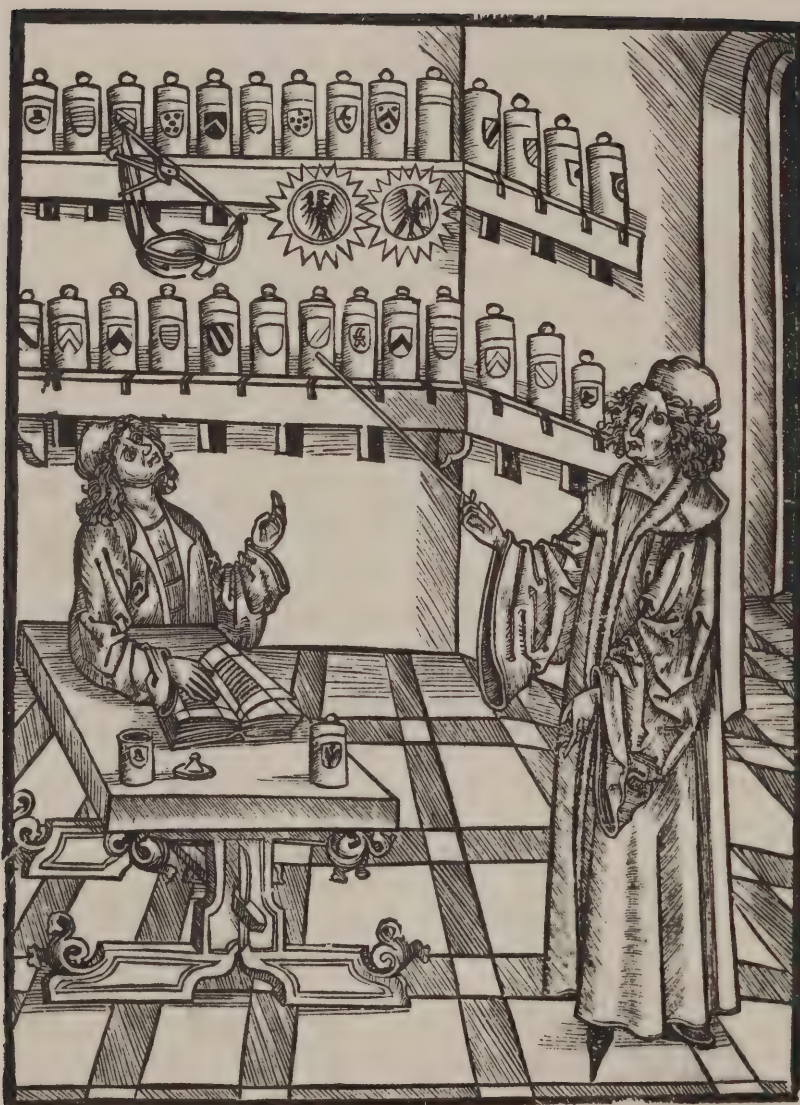

AS this catalogue is primarily intended for the use of book-lovers and others who may desire to easily and readily ascertain if certain books are in the collection, the arrangement is alphabetical by authors and titles (where the books are anonymous), with such cross-references as may be needed to make the list intelligible. An Index of printers and places has been added which should make the catalogue more serviceable to the bibliographer and student of early printing. Entries have been made as simple as possible so as not to be confusing to the reader unacquainted with bibliographical description and terminology. Where the incunabula have been previously described in a standard bibliography, a short title has been used without quotations from the incipit, colophon or text. References are given to Hain, the Gesamtkatalog der Wiegendrucke, the British Museum Catalogue, Pellechet and other authorities. The form of entry embodies the author, short title of work, size of page in millimetres, place and date of publication, printer and references. The books marked with an asterisk belong to the Boston Medical Library, having been given to the Library by Dr. Bullard during the past few years.

The books have been collected with the definite idea of bringing together the works on medicine and related sciences which were printed in the fifteenth century. Particular attention has not been given to printers or presses and very little stress placed on first editions, except in a few instances. The medieval student's greatest need was dictionaries to interpret the new words flowing into the language from foreign sources. Medical terms and definitions are contained in most of the fifteenth century dictionaries and for this reason the Bullard Collection includes many examples of this class of book. The Arabian authors are very well represented, and the collection is also strong in the philosophical field of medicine as evidenced by the numerous texts of Albertus Magnus, Nider, Sabunde, and others, and of Aristotle and his various commentators. Of special interest are the pest tracts and the various works on witchcraft, demons, sorcery and divination.

Particular attention is called to the "Opus de Universo" of Rabanus Maurus, 1467, the first recorded printed book to contain a chapter on medicine; the "Guldin Harpffen" of Johannes Nider, printed by Bämle at Augsburg in 1472 (a magnificent copy, superbly illuminated in gold and colors); the two early texts of Bagellardus and Metlinger on pediatrics; the "Regimen" of Maimonides, from the Monastery of SS. Ulrich and Afra; the very fine copy of the 1481 "Catholicon" of Johannes Balbus; the first impression of the first edition of the "Buch der Chirurgia" of Hieronymus Brunschwig, with the first printing of the added "Anathomia," in immaculate condition; the surgical collections of Guy de Chauliac and Petrus de Argellata; the first edition of the Versehung von Leib, Seele, Ehre und Gut from the Monastery of Saint Peter at Salzburg; the "Philosophia naturalis" of Peyligk and the "Arztneibuch" of Ortolff von Bayrlandt.

Das Buch der Chirurgia. 269 × 196 mm. 126 f. + 6 f. of the Anathomia. Strassburg, Johann [Reinhard] Grüninger, Zinstag nach s. Peter und Paulsdag [4 July]. MCCCXCVII [1497].

Hain 4018, Pell. 3041.

The first impression of the first edition with the first printing of the added "Anathomia" as described by Sudhoff, Arch. f. d. Gesch. d. Med., Lpz. 1907-08, 1, 41. With 48 large woodcuts printed from 18 different combined blocks, 13 small woodcut illustrations and the full-page woodcut of the skeleton for the "Anathomia" adapted from the Hela broadside of 1493. Fine, perfect, uncolored copy. Grüninger, of Strassburg, the authorized publisher of Brunschwig, first issued in July 1497, the monumental "Buch der Chirurgia." Written in the Strassburg dialect and well-illustrated it became immediately successful and within six months, in Dec. 1497, Schönsperger, of Augsburg, issued an unauthorized reprint of the Grüninger edition. This reprint was well done and offered serious rivalry to the original edition. To meet this competition Grüninger went to his author and got him to write two additional chapters, one on embalming, the other on worms in the intestines; and also a six leave tract on anatomy for which was drawn the famous skeleton illustration. Grüninger also reprinted the last leaves, correcting some of the more obvious misprints, such as the date 1397 for 1497, etc. He then gathered the new chapters with the sheets he had in stock in various combinations which has caused great confusion in the collation of the extant copies. Sudhoff has found eight variants of the "Chirurgia" and three of the "Anathomia."

Hain 11128, Sudhoff 36, Osler 49, L'Art Ancien, Bull. 15, pt. 3, 1193.

The second edition of the first pediatric book to be published in German. Dr. John Ruhräh devotes twenty-eight pages to Metlinger in his Pediatrics of the Past, New York, 1925, and Sudhoff reproduces in facsimile the first edition of the "Regiment" in his: Erstlinge der pädiatrischen Literatur, Munich, 1925.

Old note of ownership on the title-leaf:

"Monasterii S. Udalrici et Afrae. Augustae.

"This note is interesting in connection with Bämmler, the printer of this book, and his printing activity in the Monastery of SS. Ulrich and Afra, to which this copy belonged, according to the inscription just quoted. The B. M. Cat. (II, p. 330), speaking of Bämmler's second type, which is exclusively used in the present book, says: 'This type was first used in the Gregorius printed (by Bämmler) in 1473 in the Monastery of SS. Ulrich and Afra, and as Bämmler, who usually put his name to his books, omitted it from four out of five others entirely in this type, here catalogued, some or all of these may have been printed for the monastery.' The note of ownership in the present copy appears to support the theory that also the present book, which is not represented in the B. M. collection, was printed by Bämle in the Monastery."
